

Policy Homework

This policy has been written with regard to the guidance 'Working together to safeguard children', 'Keeping children safe in education' and the 'Special Education Needs Code of Practice', which places Special Education Needs and Disabilities together and abbreviated to SEND. A copy can be seen in the Headteacher's Office.

The overall objective of the school's Equality Policy, in line with the Equality Act 2010, is to provide a framework for the school to pursue its equality duties to eliminate unlawful discrimination and harassment, promote equality of opportunity, and promote good relations and positive attitudes between people of diverse backgrounds in all its activities.

1. Introduction

The school values the partnership between children, teachers and parents. It seeks to encourage pupils' own learning within their home environment by expecting children to undertake homework tasks.

We encourage parents to help support their child in doing homework by showing interest and guidance. However, we would not wish to encourage parents to undertake their homework for them.

As the children progress through the school, the type of homework and time allocation increases (see timetable). For all ages, homework should be purposeful, stimulating and fun, as well as preparing children for the next stage of learning.

Homework can take many varied forms that enhance work done within the school. It can be oral, written or practical.

Homework should positively promote learning and have the following common features:

2. Purpose

What is homework for?

- Allowing practice and consolidation of work done in class.
- Developing research skills by using libraries and other learning resources.
- Providing opportunities for other individualised work.
- Training for pupils in planning, organisation of time and self discipline.
- Encouraging ownership and responsibility for learning.

The success of homework relies on the partnership of parent, teacher and child.

3. Advice to Parents

- Homework can be fun!
- Provide a reasonably peaceful, suitable place for doing homework.
- Consider the best time of day for doing homework – it doesn't have to always be in the evening.
- Parents are encouraged to comment in the homework book.
- Make it clear to children that you value homework and support the school in explaining how it can help them make progress.
- Expect deadlines to be met and check that they are. Homework is due in on the Wednesday following the Friday it is given out. Project work is due in the following Wednesday – i.e. 2 weeks.
- Give praise for completion.
- Seek advice from the class teacher as soon as possible (preferably on the Monday) if there are concerns over homework. In this way we help clarify your queries before the homework deadline.

4. Organisation

See timetable for allocation of time, days and range of provision. Homework should be available from Friday after school. The school policy is not to give weekly homework before this time. Parents who request work before Friday pm should be told that work can be collected after school on Friday or the following week. It is not possible to produce homework earlier due to teacher's planning on Thursday evening.

If a child is absent on the Friday, when homework is allocated, we ask parents to remind the child to ask for it when they return to school.

School work should be sent home when requested if children have sustained absence from school.

As part of their homework, all the children will bring their reading books home every night. If you can share these books with your child as often as possible it will help. In Y1-Y6 the reading diary gives advice about extending reading skills.

Homework instructions will be given out each week. Work should be completed in pencil or pen according to the writing tool normally used by individual children used in school.

Teachers should keep a record of all homework handed in and follow up promptly when tasks are not completed. This will include arranging a time for work to be completed during breaktime or golden time. In KS2 yellow marks will be given for the 1st 2 missed homeworks and a red mark for a 3rd or subsequent times. The teacher will have discussion with an individual parent if concerns regarding homework continue to arise.

5. Responding to Children's Work

Children's homework will be responded to in a variety of ways:

Research work will be shared and celebrated in the relevant lesson by teacher and peers. For example by reading work to a response partner, putting work on a class display or marking each other's tests.

The class teacher will look at homework weekly and sign or mark tasks as appropriate ready for the next other's task. Teachers should mark homework according to the marking policy in green pen, ensuring regular feedback is given.

Project homework will be presented in class and teachers will use these presentations as part of the child's speaking and listening assessment record. Pupils have the opportunity to listen peers' presentations and offer their own evaluative feedback.

Throughout the school, class teacher will monitor reading, test spellings and multiplication tables when given. Days are set aside for testing spellings etc and these dates should be adhered to.

6. Monitoring

The Governing Body's Monitoring and Evaluation Committee will monitor and review this policy annually as part of its terms of reference.

The daily reading, which the government recommends for all children, can of course be done as part of homework. On days when the homework activity is something other than reading, children should be encouraged to read on their own or with others for at least 10 minutes for FS and Key Stage 1 and 20 minutes for Key Stage 2.
